

Neighborhood meeting

Aquarium at Kotti (next to Café Südblock)

Rents are far too high for a long time now. The ancillary costs are exploding as well. Prices are rising. Many of us can't afford it anymore.

Will many more people soon be evicted and end up homeless on the street? Will even more low-income people be forced out of our neighborhood? Will people have to go hungry because most of their income goes to rent and utilities?

There are many of us who are affected. How do we manage to come together and overcome the isolation?

How do we prevent people from being evicted from their homes because they can no longer pay rent or utilities?

How can we work together to prevent people from having their electricity, gas or heating cut off?

Part one: What to do about exploding utility costs?
(Berliner Mieter*innen-Verein, requested)

Part two: What can we do together against high rents, high utility costs, rising prices, exclusion and poverty?

Let's get to know each other, exchange ideas and make plans together.
