

Neighborhood meeting

Rents have been far too high for a long time. Now utility costs are skyrocketing, too. Prices are rising. Many of us can no longer afford it.

Will more people soon be evicted and end up homeless on the street? Will more low-income people be forced out of our neighborhood? Will people have to go hungry because most of their income goes to rent and utilities? There are many of us who are affected.

How do we manage to come together and overcome the isolation?

How do we prevent people from being evicted from their homes because they can no longer pay rent or utilities?

How can we work together to prevent people from having their electricity, gas or heating cut off?

We don't have any fixed answers. But we know that we have to join together now. Let's get to know each other, exchange ideas and make joint plans.
